Rape reports rise sharply

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

About five minutes after she met the man, Sue was raped by him.

"I had grown up thinking you can trust people," she said.

It happened in her own home, with her two children in the next room. She couldn't run and couldn't cry out, she said.

Sue, a pseudonym for a local woman who agreed to talk about her experience, also said she didn't report the rape because of how she was brought up. She feared being blamed.

"It goes with your background, with certain attitudes. I actually thought you could meet somebody and it would be OK," she said.

Most rapes still go unreported, officials say, despite changes in state law in the last eight years that have increased the number of rapes that authorities do learn about.

In Illinois, between 1989 and 1990, the number of rapes reported to police rose 4 percent to 6,399, according to Illinois State Police figures.

Polly Poskin, executive director of the Illinois Coalition Against Sexual Assault (ICASA), said more victims report the crime than 10 years ago. But she added, "there's a part of me that wonders, maybe there's more rape.

"I can't prove" that, she admitted. Perhaps only 10 percent of all rapes are ever reported to authorities, she said.

Granite City Police Chief Don Knight said he believes the 10 percent figure "is probably accurate," although he said he believes more victims are willing to come forward now than in the past.

According to Knight, the number of reported rape cases in Granite City doubled from 1981 to 1991, from 13 reported rapes in 1981 to 27 reports of criminal sexual abuse in 1991.

Knight said the changes in the law defining rape, combined with the efforts of the rape crisis

Jay Snyder does a little touching up on the King Tut mask he made for a junior high school dance.

'King Tut' highlights dance

By Randy Vaughn
Staff writer

Jay Snyder has been an auto body shop operator for 25 years. But his fascination with archaeology prompted him to create an unusual decoration for a recent school dance — a King Tut mask.

The mask was the focal point of a dance at Coolidge Junior High School, where Snyder's son, Stephen, is a student.

Snyder, who has owned and operated a Granite City body shop dealing primarily in racing and exotic cars for the last 25 years, had volunteered for a parents committee to help coordinate the dance for students who had achieved a "C" or better grade average.

"The dance was created to give the kids some incentive to get good grades," Dance Coordinator Judy Reidelberger said. "He wanted to be involved in his child's education, so, like many other parents, he volunteered."

The dance featured an Egyptian theme, which fit Snyder's interest perfectly.

6 families homeless after fire

By Randy Vaughn
Staff writer

Six Granite City families lost their homes to a fire at 2005-2007 Missouri Ave. on Saturday.

The fire in the two-story, six-apartment frame structure caused an estimated $92,000 damage to the building and contents, the Granite City Fire Department estimated.

Firefighters were called at 2:55 p.m. and were at the scene until 8:30 p.m. The fire rekindled at 5 a.m. Sunday, requiring an hour to extinguish.

A Granite City firefighter, Greg Nighohossian, suffered minor injuries when he fell through flooring. There were no injuries to any of the inhabitants.

Fire officials say the fire could have been started by a child playing with a lighter.

Photos boost Aquacenter

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Plans for the proposed Mid-America Aquacenter in Pontoon Beach have been given a boost by the promised donation of 200,000 sea-life photographs taken by a famous underwater photographer.

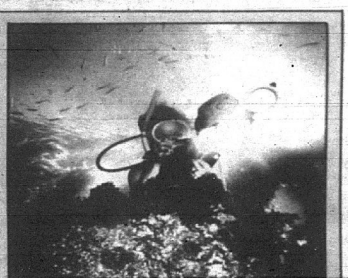

Joyce Church Edelbrock has agreed to donate the photographs, as well as hundreds of feet of film — all representing her life's work — to the Aquacenter.

Edelbrock, who was the first person to observe and photograph sea otters using "tools" to secure food underwater, is well known as the 'Sea Otter Lady," a nickname given her after she appeared on the television show "To Tell the Truth," hosted by Gary Moore.

At the time, panelist Betty White said it was easy to guess who was the real 'Sea Otter Lady' because Edelbrock's "love for sea otters showed the instant one appeared on the screen. Her eyes glowed with excitement. She simply oozed sea otters."

Edelbrock was married to the late Ron Church, a noted underwater photographer and the only American photographer to ever work with Jacques Cousteau.

Already an avid skin diver, she became the most photographed underwater model in America and the first wet suit ever made for a woman was made for her. Sea Hunt's Lloyd Bridges called her "the best diveress I've ever seen."

Edelbrock has been on underwater safaris with Cousteau, the National Geographic Society, Skin Diver Magazine, Westinghouse Deepsea Explorations and the Mexican Government's underwater archaeological expeditions in the Mayan Ruins of Chichen-Itza.

She and Church have published articles and

Local man arrested in assault

By Martin Richter
Staff writer

Collinsville Police were holding a Granite City man on Monday pending application for warrants charging him with home invasion, armed violence, aggravated assault, reckless conduct, battery and unlawful use of weapons.

The man, age 36, was arrested as he was attempting to flee the area in his car, according to a police report.

The incident occurred at about 1:45 a.m. Monday at a home in the 100 block of Bonne Terre Drive.

The suspect allegedly forced his way into the residence, where he battered and threatened his girlfriend and her sister, according to the report.

The victims told police that the suspect fired a shot from one of the handguns he was carrying during the incident. Nobody was

Cafeteria worker Miriam Ozanich puts vendor-made pizza into the oven at Granite City High.

Pizza popular, but pupils don't agree on which kind

By Randy Vaughn
Staff writer

A study asking elementary students what type of pizza they prefer determined only that pizza is a popular lunch-time meal at the schools.

The study of Granite City School District grade school pupils was conducted at Mitchell and Frohardt schools on Feb. 5 to learn the popular choice between the currently served frozen pizza and made-from-scratch pizza.

Mitchell School students preferred the school-made pizza, while Frohardt pupils endorsed Tony's frozen pizza.

"The number one choice of most children is pizza," said Brad Eavenson, the schools' director of food service, adding that the district wanted to determine the most popular, economically efficient way to serve the favorite food item.

Questionnaires were served up to two district schools along with two kinds of pizza. The questionnaires were drawn up because the district has been exploring alternative buying methods to reduce costs.

Although Mitchell youngsters favored freshly-made pizza, Frohardt students had different tastes, Eavenson said.

"In talking with 45 students at Frohardt, 33 preferred the pizza we are currently buying, six preferred school-made pizza and six didn't have a preference as long as they got pizza," he said.

If both schools would have overwhelmingly liked the school-made pizza better, then the district would have tried to comply, Eavenson said.

A separate study compared the prices between three alternatives: using government commodities, purchased ingredients, or the existing vendor-purchased pizza.

The price per piece of pizza using government food commodities is estimated at 29 cents; purchased ingredients, 51 cents; and vendor-purchased, 40 cents.

While the first option would seem to be the cheapest, this can be misleading, Eavenson said.

Any commodities used for pizza would

George Washington for prexy, or maybe Elvis

Thank you for agreeing to meet with us, General Washington, sir. We know how strange this must seem after all these years, but we wouldn't bother you if we didn't think you still had what it takes to be President.

Frankly, sir, we've taken a look at the rest of the field and we think you're the best person for the job.

Yes sir, we know you're going to be 260 years old. This Friday? Congratulations. Don't get too close to the candles, if you know what I mean. It's our thinking that President Reagan pretty much laid the age issue to rest, General. If he could do it, so could you. Besides, they've got penicillin and stuff for strep throat these days, General. It doesn't have to be fatal anymore.

We see you announcing your availability right after the New Hampshire primary. Suddenly everybody in the country is going to take a look at the rest of the field and gag. There's like 220 million people now instead of the 4 million or so the last time you ran, but don't worry. You're still very big, sir. Everybody knows your name; the Redskins won the Super Bowl.

You call a press conference, say you're back and then we go to work. We'll do a lot of TV and not just heavy shows like "Meet the Press." Geraldo and Phil are going to be very, very interested, too.

You're going to be very, very good on TV, General. You're what — 6-foot-2, 180 or so? That's good. The haircut may need a little work and we might want you to get the teeth fixed. You'll need a media coach, but don't sweat it.

Also, we're going to need your wife in the campaign. From what we hear, she's a little plain and the wardrobe is a little dowdy. But don't worry. We fixed Marilyn Quayle, didn't we?

Fund raising is going to be a snap. Hey, your picture is on every dollar bill in the country, am I right? We think the Political Action Committees will come through for us, particularly the gun lobby. You were a big Second Amendment guy last time around, right?

Now we do need to check a couple of things. You volunteered for military service, right? No student deferment, no National Guard duty? Never had any shock treatment because electricity hadn't been invented. That was tobacco you grew on the plantation, right? No dope or anything?

What about babes, General? There are no skeletons in the closet, present company excepted? The reason we ask is we see there was a 16-year-old girl name Betsy Fauntleroy you were sweet on for a while. Yeah, we know you were only 20 at the time, but you can't be too careful. We don't want her in the tabloids.

Also, we know Martha was a widow when you were married; there wasn't anything between you and her first old man was there? The reason we ask is we know she burned all your letters. There wasn't anything she was trying to hide?

OK, listen. The cherry tree story, the dollar-across-the-Potomac stories, we know they're bogus. The media will crucify us if they find that out, so if someone asks, be vague. Don't say, "I cannot tell a lie." Just say something like, "I can't recall if I have any present recollection of the incidents to which you allude." It worked for Reagan.

Now, as to campaign strategy. We can't have you running against Washington, because let's face it — you are Washington. We're going to run on your war record. We'll do some great spots — Valley Forge, crossing the Delaware, Mount Vernon. The announcer says, "He's back ... and he's mad as hell."

We'll point out you balanced the budget last time out. We'll talk about you surveying the wilderness to get the environmental vote. We'll skirt the education issue being as how you dropped out of school when you were 15. You'll tell them Japan isn't the problem, England is. We can invade them this time, General!

We figure by the time the California primary rolls around — what? Oh, California is a state, General. Yeah, we know there were only 11 the first time you ran, but there's 50 of 'em now. We're going to get you to every one of them, too. You're going to have to forget about those 9 o'clock bedtimes for a while.

What? You're not interested? What are you doing, a Cuomo on us? You can't be serious. You are? Well, do us a favor. Ask Elvis if he's interested.

group at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, made it easier for victims to come forward.

The state changed how it defined rape in 1984. A decade ago, rape was a sex offense that meant forcing a woman to engage in sexual intercourse against her will, said Mary Boland, attorney for ICASA.

Today, criminal sexual assault and criminal sexual abuse charges, which are considered violent crimes, have replaced rape, Boland said. Those charges also replaced the charge labeled as indecent liberties with a child.

Dropping the "against her will" clause was crucial, Boland said, because those words put victims, rather than offenders, under scrutiny.

Knight said it wasn't an "overnight change," but that, as word got around that help and sympathetic professionals are available, victims seem more willing to press charges.

More than 10,000 women asked for assistance last year from rape crisis centers funded by ICASA, Boland said. The organization has 30 centers serving all of Illinois' 102 counties.

But "we have no way of seeing all" the victims, she said. Are "there another 10,000 out there that are not even coming to the rape crisis centers?" she asked.

Boland said some of that attitude remains. She said the behavior of the women in the rape trials of William Kennedy Smith and Mike Tyson has received more attention than the behavior of the defendants.

Women do not report the crime because they feel blamed and fear reprisals, Poskin said. ICASA reports that, in 80 percent of rapes, the victims and assailants know each other.

While acknowledging that rape victims may have been viewed as partially to blame "in the dark ages," Knight said, "Modern police officers don't feel that way."

Knight said reports of sexual assault of children by adults have "gone up about 1,000 percent" since the 1970s.

He said a change in the law that puts a priority on keeping families together while helping the child get over the trauma — and ensuring that it doesn't happen again — seems to have made it more likely that a rape will be reported.

Sue would only describe her attacker as a man she met in a casual encounter. Her husband, she said, was very upset about the attack and wanted to find the rapist.

"It really tore things up for a while," she said.

But the rape happened in a darkened room. "I don't remember what he looked like," she said. "I can remember his eyes. I can remember colors."

Since then, she said, she is more careful about trusting others.

"I think you can go on and live your life," Sue said. "I think it's something that never really goes away."

than not be available for other products made from the commodities, such as meat loaf, he said.

One-fifth of all food served in the school cafeterias uses government commodities, he noted.

"The 29-cent price is only the pay for freight costs. Since other product ingredients would then have to be purchased, there is no real saving to the district," Eavenson said.

"The frozen pizza is nutritious and has few fat grams. As long as the kids are eating good food at a good price, the current pizza will be all right."

Tony's Pizza is served three Mondays per month, he said.

Although the student questionnaire did not determine the popularity of school-made pizza compared to frozen pizza, it did prove two things to the board, Eavenson said.

"From the looks of the questionnaire, many of the parents obviously sat down with their children and helped them fill it out, which is a positive," he said. "It also showed that children's eating patterns are different from school to school."

Some food preferences can be determined from where a child lives, Eavenson said.

"The more centralized the school's location, the more partial the students are to convenient foods like burritos and tacos," he said. "The outlying schools, like Prather and Marshall, are partial to home-made foods like spaghetti and meat loaf."

The Granite City School Board on Feb. 11 also discussed the cost-saving possibility of having frozen pizza delivered to the school warehouse as opposed to delivery at each individual school.

life," the 55-year-old Snyder said. "When I was younger, I wanted to be an archaeologist like Howard Carter, who discovered the King Tut tomb."

He describes himself as a mechanic and his work as a hobby after recently retiring from Granite City Steel.

The 6-by-6-foot replica was the result of two weeks of molding and sculpting wood, Styrofoam and plastic, followed by hand-painting of the mask for display at the two-hour dance.

"I made the whole thing from scratch by looking at a picture of the mask," he said.

"I've always liked to make things, so it was worth it. I found the creation of this piece to be very comparable to making a pattern for a car body."

Snyder said the work on the dance decoration was fun.

"I'd like to do something like this for a stage set or something," he said. "It would be interesting."

"We received a lot of positive remarks on all of the decorations, including the mask," Reidelberger said. "The kids had a look of amazement when they first came in."

The talents of Snyder and other parents would be welcomed on future occasions, Reidelberger said.

"If we can get them to volunteer again, we'll use them," she said. "This was a great way to get the school and the parents working together for a common interest."

The language of the sea

More than 20 years ago, Joyce Church Edelbrock wrote a poem that served as an introduction to a book by her late husband, Ron Church. The book was on underwater photography.

"I think it sums up a moment underwater pretty well and tells what we were trying to do, our unique twist, with our pictures," she said. "The poem will be a part of our show here (at the proposed Aquacenter in Pontoon Beach), serving as the narrative for a slide show."

The poem is called "A Moment at Catalina, Past."

I leave my world of
Sky and sun behind.
Sinewy silvered diamonds
Play above my head.
Blue-cold fills
My liquid place of sea.
It holds me captive.
My mind fills with seeing.
Permanent I want each moment to be,
Each vision — a lasting memory.
In dark peaks
I see its mysteries dim.
One instant
My light turns black to gold —
My camera holds
The secrets of the sea.
Its life,
Its beauties, therein foretold.
Yet wanting more,
I must ascend.
My fleeting visit,
'Tis done.
I smile and start the telling
Of my sea tale.
But I find the language of
The sea's a silent one.
Best told by pictures,
Not by words.

The planned Aquacenter is currently seeking to sell $1.25 million in bonds in order to build its first phase, a 200,000 square-foot facility that will include an aquarium and other exhibits.

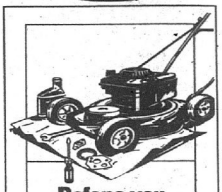

According to Leonard Sonnenschein, president of the Aquacenter, tours of the center will link together with the adjacent natural settings including the nesting area of herons and other large waterfowl, the ponds used by migratory birds, Horseshoe Lake and Cahokia Mounds.

Edelbrock, who now resides in the St. Louis area, said she only learned about the planned Aquacenter a few weeks ago.

"After several meetings with this rare and endangered species — a dedicated survivor who is determined that an aquarium comes to this area — I realized (Sonnenschein) has developed all the components necessary to present the vast opportunities that a Mid-America aqua-adventure can give to local children and adults and the tourist as well," Edelbrock said.

"They would learn to appreciate and understand the important water cycle that occurs here, at the water crossroads of the nation."

Women warned of growing AIDS risk

By Christopher Knight
Correspondent

SPRINGFIELD — State and local health officials want to spread a message to women of childbearing age — that they are the new high risk category for contracting AIDS.

The Illinois Department of Public Health late last month announced a radio and television campaign to educate such women, especially African-Americans and Hispanics, about the dangers of acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

The announcement followed the department's release of records showing that AIDS from male-female contact reported by African-American women rose from 14 cases in 1990 to 32 in 1991.

The department also said AIDS cases among Hispanics increased 5 percent, from 162 in 1990 to 171 in 1991. This is significant, because Hispanics account for 11 percent of all AIDS cases, but represent 8 percent of the state population.

Cases from African-American women injecting drugs jumped 168 percent, from 19 cases reported in 1990 to 51 in 1991. Hispanics reported three such cases.

AIDS is an affliction in which a virus attacks the body's immune system, leaving victims susceptible to a wide variety of infections and cancers.

Many women who develop AIDS wrongly assumed they were in a monogamous relationship with a man, said Louise Shumpert, supervisor of the sexually transmitted diseases department at the East Side Health District in East St. Louis. Other cases appear when women accept intravenous drugs in exchange for sex, Shumpert said.

Shumpert said her center noticed the rising AIDS cases among women last year and began increasing education. The center visited several public aid offices to hang posters and distribute brochures, she said.

The East Side Health District also is encouraging local doctors to test women for HIV, the human immuno-deficiency virus, which causes AIDS. Increased testing like this already has found two area cases of AIDS this year, Shumpert said.

Shumpert encouraged women who think they are at risk of contracting AIDS to come to her center, which offers tests for sexually transmitted diseases, vaginal smears tests and risk assessments. Women can fill out a questionnaire that tells whether their lifestyle puts them at risk, she said.

State officials urge women planning to have a baby to be tested for HIV infection, because an infected mother can pass the virus to her baby during pregnancy or birth. Precautions still can be taken if women are infected and already pregnant, officials said.

2 from Fairmont die in accident

Two Fairmont City youths were killed in a one-car accident Saturday night in rural Jarvis Township.

Martin A. Dickshot, 18, of the 5300 block of Collinsville Road and Douglas Beasley, 17, of the 2900 block of North 62nd Street were killed in the crash, which occurred at about 9:45 p.m. on Stevenson Road, a quarter-mile south of Lebanon Road, according to a Madison County Sheriff's Department report.

Dickshot was driving the car northbound on Stevenson Road at a high rate of speed when it crested a hill and he lost control, going airborne and striking a telephone pole, according to the report.

Neither was wearing a seatbelt, according to the report. There was no indication that alcohol was involved in the accident.

Beasley was a junior at Collinsville High School, said his sister, Cynthia Hayes. Dickshot was a CHS graduate, Hayes said.

Welfare system baby rules targeted

By Christopher Knight
Correspondent

SPRINGFIELD — People on welfare no longer would receive more money when they have another child under a bill proposed by Sen. Frank Watson.

Watson, R-Greenville, says welfare costs would drop if the state eliminates "a welfare system that rewards people for increasing their family size without regard to how many children they can provide for."

Watson's bill states that families receiving Aid to Families of Dependent Children would not receive more money if they are on public aid before conceiving another child.

"Working families are faced with the economic question of how many children they can afford, and they determine the size of their family on the number of children they can support," Watson said.

Watson said his bill could encourage people on welfare to use current family planning services available, to help families make "responsible economic decisions regarding how many children they have."

In central Illinois, a single mother who is six months pregnant is eligible for a $204 monthly AFDC check, Watson said. When one child is added, she earns $259, he said. And a women with seven children earns $577, he said.

"We've thrown enough money at the problem and now we need to come up with another solution," he said. "One of these days there aren't going to be enough taxpayers to pay for this growing problem."

Watson said he visited local families on public aid and said they "were very supportive and felt it could be easily administered at the local level."

St. Clair County may help cities with stray animals

By Bonita Tillman
Staff writer

A plan under consideration by the St. Clair County Animal Control Department would make it easier for all cities in the county to rid their streets of stray animals at all hours by bringing them to the county facility.

Dr. Tom Amlung, director of the Animal Control Center, said each interested community would be provided a key for access to separate fenced areas, or "runs," behind the facility so they could place animals there over the weekend and at other times when staff members are not there.

The runs are outdoor fenced areas which lead to a door and an inside run, which provides food and water to the dogs.

"We decided to try and extend it to everyone, so we sent out letters," he said.

About 14 communities expressed interest in joining the program, but Amlung said his second letter, saying the program was about ready to begin, went virtually unanswered.

Few St. Clair County cities have their own animal facilities, although several once had holding pens. If officials get calls for stray animals, they generally have no options on where to take animals, he said. They have to wait until the county's Animal Control Center is open.

The program is already in use in Fairview Heights, Caseyville, Swansea, Freeburg and Scott Air Force Base. The all-hours service started in those communities after officials complained about not having any place to take animals, Amlung said.

Officials from both Freeburg and Fairview Heights had high praise for the program.

Fairview Heights operates animal control services 24 hours a day, so access to the county facility keeps that system moving, said Ed Frawley, the city's animal control officer.

"It's worked out wonderful for us and it's a plus for our own program here," he said. "If we get a call about a stray at St. Clair Square or K mart, we can immediately take care of the animal before it is run over or tries to bite someone."

A multitude of state laws about keeping animals for a particular period of time makes having one's own facility too costly, Frawley said, so Fairview Heights appreciates the county service.

Dan Seibel, a Freeburg patrol officer, said the village traditionally waited until county animal control workers could come and pick up the dogs, but the all-hours program allows more flexibility.

Freeburg had one of the first runs offered by the county, he said, and it helps, when the village has several dogs, to be able to take them to the county facility.

"We have had very good rapport and cooperation with the Animal Control Department," Seibel said.

Amlung said he is waiting to see which communities respond to his second letter, but members of the county Public Safety Committee said they are anxious to provide the service to every city in the county.

Conflicts grow between Ryan, union leaders

Conflicts between Secretary of State George Ryan and workers escalated after union leaders filed 13 complaints with the state labor board.

The complaints, filed Thursday by the General Services Employees Union, allege that Ryan officials have threatened union employees, interfered in voting on a proposed contract and given union leaders false information about scheduled layoffs.

Union leaders asked the Illinois State Labor Relations Board to halt some 500 layoffs and closings of 52 driver service centers set for Saturday.

"We think we have a chance, but it's up to the labor board," said Al Pieper, a union business agent in Springfield.

Labor board officials couldn't be reached to comment about the complaints or how soon they might review them. Ryan spokeswoman Kim St. Aubin said Thursday that Ryan had not seen the complaints.

Union leaders were expected to tally Friday the ballots sent to nearly 2,500 members on whether they will accept Ryan's proposal for a revised contract that would avoid layoffs and closings.

Rank-and-file union members have said they are divided on the issue, drawing a line between people who want raises and others who want to keep all members working.

If union members vote down the proposal, which gives most of them 7 percent raises starting in July, Ryan officials are expected to announce more layoffs soon thereafter.

Facing layoffs Saturday were 10 workers in the Bethalto driver license office.

Janet Wilson, administrator of the Bethalto office, said her office was swamped last week because residents feared the office would close. Wilson said employees were told to consider Friday their last day.

"They will turn in their uniforms and other things that belong to the state," Wilson said.

The union's filing of complaints Thursday added another layer to the pile of issues surrounding the debate over jobs or pay cuts.

The debate appeared solved Jan. 30, when Ryan and union leaders tentatively agreed to Ryan's new proposal. But, union leaders then mailed letters telling members the leadership would not recommend a yes or no vote on the plan.

Events took even another twist Feb. 11 when 150 union members accused union leaders of unfair labor practices.

A complaint document, representing nearly 150 union members, was filed with the State Labor Relations Board, alleging that union leaders didn't mail ballots to all voting members, failed to ensure the integrity of the voting process and failed to support Ryan's proposal after telling Ryan they would do so.

Vadalabene heads Haine committee

State Sen. Sam Vadalabene will serve as honorary chairman in Madison County State's Attorney William Haine's re-election bid.

Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville, said he endorsed Haine four years ago because he believed the Alton attorney could restore the office's place in the criminal justice system.

Since then, Vadalabene said, Haine has sent a record number of people to prison and gained the support of police officers.

"He has fulfilled that promise and I am proud to recommend him once again to the voters of our county," Vadalabene said.

Haine said, "I have worked hard to live up to the faith that Sam placed in me four years ago. I'm proud that he believes I have done a good job."

The March 17 Democratic primary pits Haine against Alton attorney Dan O'Neill. No Republican candidate has entered the race yet.

Czechoslovakian discussion today

"Czechoslovakia: 22 Years After the Fall of Communism" will be the topic at today's session of Dialogue for Senior Citizens, a program for senior citizens at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

The session will be held in the Mississippi-Illinois Rooms of the University Center, beginning at 1 p.m. Kamil Winter, emeritus professor of mass communications at the university, will be the featured speaker.

Winter was the head of communications in Czechoslovakia at the time of the Communist takeover in 1969.

Twenty-two years after his escape and only a few months after the fall of Communism in that country, the SIUE educator received a special invitation to return to his alma mater, 600-year-old Charles University, to lecture and visit with friends and colleagues.

Since then, he has closely followed the struggle of his former country to return to its rightful place in the free world.

During the session, Winter will discuss some of the difficult problems Czechoslovakia and other nations who have abandoned Communism are now facing.

Dialogue for Senior Citizens is an educational and cultural enrichment program for older adults. Its programs are free and open to the public. Transportation is available at the Edwardsville Senior Citizens Center, located at 1003 Main St.

Seminar set on new truck driver licensing exam

To help drivers pass the exam for the new commercial driver's license, the Illinois Institute for Training and Development will conduct a one-day seminar at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 25.

Under the federal Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act, commercial drivers must obtain the new commercial licenses by Wednesday, April 1.

Institute spokesman Susan Carr said, "Unless you pass the written test, you don't have a valid CDL. It's that simple."

The act requires new CDLs for drivers of vehicles weighing more than 26,000 pounds; vehicles designed to transport 16 or more persons, including the driver; or vehicles transporting hazardous materials that require placarding.

Those exempted from the new provisions include farmers (except when driving semitrailers) and drivers of firefighting, military or recreational vehicles.

Larry Trapani, a program administrator at the Illinois Department of Transportation, is the seminar instructor.

Youth Symphony in concert March 1 at Powell Hall

By Jim Haverstick
Staff writer

The St. Louis Youth Symphony Orchestra is not the junior league of symphonies. The music played by the youth orchestra is as complex as the music played by professionals.

In concert March 1 at Powell Symphony Hall, the youth orchestra will play the overture from Guiseppe Verdi's grand opera "The Force of Destiny," Dmitri Shostakovich's Symphony No. 5 in its entirety, as well as a Luigi Bocherinni cello solo. The event, co-sponsored by the Suburban Journals, begins at 3 p.m.

"The conductors try to pick a significant repertoire for the students to learn each year," said Peggy Neilson, manager of the youth orchestra.

Last fall the orchestra played Ludwig Von Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, selections from a Benjamin Briton opera and a contemporary piece by James Hurt.

"It is a challenging repertoire," she said. "They are playing more difficult things than they would at school and the music will be useful to them."

She said Verdi's "The Force of Destiny" is a major opera and it is quite a challenge for the students to be playing the overture. The Shostakovich symphony is a complicated and exciting piece of music also.

The idea behind the youth symphony is to give young musicians a chance to learn and play more complex pieces of music. The students study with professional orchestra members, which gives them a chance to improve their technique, style and approach to music.

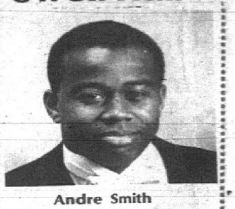

"The youth orchestra enhances and supplements what students are already getting in their school and private lessons," Neilson said. "We try to make it as close as we can to the structure and atmosphere of a professional orchestra."

She and the conductors hope the students take what they have learned back to school with them, employ it in their studies, and share it with other students.

Through these lessons the youth orchestra is indirectly helping school music programs, she said. Though the youth orchestra is primarily beneficial to the students, the students add something of their own to the music.

Melissa Latimer

Andre Smith

"They bring something different to the music," Neilson said. "They bring an excitement and energy to music because it is new to them. It isn't old hat, as some would say."

This is the 21st season for the youth orchestra. The 105-member group ranges in age from 12 to 22. Students from the St. Louis Metropolitan area audition each fall for selection into the group.

Andre Raphel Smith, the affiliate artist/National Endowment for the Arts assistant conductor, will conduct the youth orchestra. Tickets are available through Metrotix outlets or at the Powell Symphony Hall Box Office, at Grand and Delmar.

Enterprise Zone group honors Watson

State Sen. Frank C. Watson, R-Greenville, has been named Legislator of the Year by the Illinois Enterprise Zone Association.

Watson was honored at the Association's annual conference in Chicago and is the first person to receive its Legislator of the Year award.

"We appealed to Sen. Watson when economic development incentives of local enterprise zones were jeopardized by the Sales Tax Reform Act of 1990," said Ralph Conner, legislation chairman of the association.

"He set up a meeting with the Department of Revenue and really carried the ball on getting legislation drafted to resolve our problem."

Watson explained that under the Sales Tax Reform Act, local enterprise zones lost control over the granting of sales tax exemptions to enterprise zone businesses buying building materials to construct, expand or renovate their sites.

"This problem is corrected in House Bill 1972, which is awaiting action by the governor," Watson said. "It restores local control by allowing counties and municipalities to limit the application of the tax exemption."

Watson said he was glad he could be of assistance to the Enterprise Zone Association.

"Enterprise Zones are one of our most important economic development tools, particularly in southern Illinois," he said.

Small-business breakfast set

"Protect Yourself: Workmen's Compensation and the Small-Business Owner" will be the topic of a breakfast seminar Tuesday, March 10, at Ravanelli's Restaurant.

The guest speakers will be Ed Fitzhenry, an attorney with the law firm of Lueders, Robertson and Konzen, and Joe Hassler, an agent with State Farm Insurance.

The seminar, the second of this year's series sponsored by the Small-Business Committee of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce, will begin at 7:15 a.m.

Breakfast and the program will begin at 7:30 a.m. The cost is $5 and reservations are required. For more information or to make reservations, the number is 876-6400.

The committee's first seminar this year, which featured a presentation on public relations by Van Arch and Associates, had the largest attendance in the history of the chamber's small-business seminars.

CUB urges attendance at forum tonight

SPRINGFIELD — The public will get a chance to ring the phone company's bells at a forum sponsored by the Citizens Utility Board.

The consumer advocate group is sponsoring the forum at 7 p.m. tonight in the Collinsville Memorial Library as part of its campaign against changing state law regulating local telephone service.

The CUB claims Illinois Bell and other companies are working "behind the scenes" to push through a new law that "would make it easier for phone companies to raise rates, even if costs are declining, and earn excessive profits."

CUB organizer Ann Irving admitted most consumers probably did not understand the complex regulatory issues involved in the legislation, but she urged them to attend the forum and simply say what they don't like about phone service.

For example, she said, many Metro East residents were upset about Illinois Bell switching to mandatory measured or pay-per-call service and would like to restore the option of unlimited flat-rate service.

Several area lawmakers have been invited to the forum, including Sens. Sam Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville; Kenneth Hall, D-East St. Louis; Wyvetter Younge, D-East St. Louis; Monroe Flinn, D-Cahokia; and Jay Hoffman, D-Collinsville. So far only Hoffman has said he will attend, Irving said.

The current telephone regulation had been scheduled to expire Dec. 30, but lawmakers extended it until May 15.

> Illinois Bell and other companies are working 'behind the scenes' to push through a new law that would make it easier for phone companies to raise rates, even if costs are declining, and earn excessive profits.'
> — CUB officials

Illinois Bell spokesman Doug McFarlan said his company is not trying to avoid regulation so it can boost rates and he denied that Illinois Bell has attempted to sneak through changes.

He said there would still be "strict controls" and approval required by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The firm has proposed Illinois follow 33 other states that have adopted "alternative regulation" for competitive services such as business systems, "800" toll-free lines and wire maintenance, McFarlan said.

Instead of the current regulation that limits the amount of profit Illinois Bell and other phone companies can make based on all of their services, they would be allowed to reap increased profits in the competitive areas, McFarlan said.

hit by the shot.

When he was arrested a short time later, police found a small arsenal in his car. Police seized several weapons — including a 38-caliber handgun, a .44-caliber Magnum revolver, a .45-caliber semiautomatic pistol and an AR-15 assault rifle.

Several of the weapons, including the AR-15, were loaded when the suspect was arrested, according to the police report.

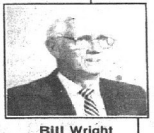

Police Sgt. Gerrit Gillespie declined to elaborate on the report. He said the case would be presented to the Madison County State's Attorney's office on Tuesday for review; the office was closed for Presidents' Day on Monday.

Past WOA recipient recounts dedication, service

By Liz Quirin
Staff writer

It takes time and requires commitment to be listed among the Women of Achievement.

Ailene Auner of Belleville, who is a past recipient of the annual award sponsored by the Suburban Journals and KMOX Radio, knows what it means to dedicate her time and channel her energy into organizations in the Metro East.

The Women of Achievement competition is designed to annually honor 10 "women who have made a commitment to serve the communities in the St. Louis area and whose efforts have improved the quality of life for those around them," organizers say.

Receiving the award in 1989 "was the icing on the cake after 25 years of service," Auner said.

Auner said 1989 was the year she intended to reduce the level of her volunteering. "It was exciting, coming at the end of a volunteer career."

A good friend told Auner she was nominating her for the award. "I was very flattered at the thought," she said.

> 'For some reason, I really didn't think I had a chance (to win). I'm not a teary person, but I almost did tear up at that.'
> — Ailene Auner

Nominations are now being accepted for the 37th Women of Achievement Awards. The nominations must be postmarked by Feb. 28. They should be addressed to: Women of Achievement Committee, c/o Suburban Journals, P.O. Box 411215, St. Louis, Mo. 63141.

Ten honorees will be recognized at a luncheon in May.

Nominations should include the nominee's full name, address and telephone number as well as information about her achievements, support letters from the organizations she serves and the name, address and telephone number of the person making the nomination.

Auner remembers the day she was notified that she was included in Women of Achievement.

"For some reason, all of my children were here (in Belleville), on a Saturday afternoon, and it came in a telegram," Auner said. "For some reason, I really didn't think I had a chance (to win)."

But because of her many years of service to the community, Auner was selected as one of the award winners that year.

"I'm not a teary person, but I almost did tear up at that," she added.

During her 25 years of volunteering, Auner served on the Harmony-Emge-Ellis School District 175 Board for 12 years, the Belleville area Special Education Board and the Children's Center for Behavioral Development Board.

Auner speaks with pride about being on the formative committee that established Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Southwestern Illinois. "The best thing I ever did was help hire Barbara Cemptura (the current executive director of the group)."

People who know Auner and her commitment to accomplishing projects invited her to help start a shelter for battered women before funding became available. That project turned into the Women's Crisis Center of Metro East.

Auner continues to volunteer at the crisis center and serve on its board of directors.

One more project must be completed before Auner retires. "We're trying to get an abuser treatment program in (St. Clair) County," she said. "Provident Counseling in Fairview Heights has been instrumental in moving this forward."

When this project takes final shape, she said she will retire to spend more time with her family.

5 matmen taste Champaign

By Mike Kelly
Staff writer

Though many fans no doubt had visions of more, the Warrior wrestling team turned in another successful performance Saturday and will send five wrestlers to the state finals this weekend.

The top three individuals in each weight class at the Granite City Sectional advanced to the state meet, which begins Friday at the Assembly Hall in Champaign.

Junior Pat Scheffer (103 pounds) and senior Ryan King (119) led the way by winning sectional titles. Senior Jerry Heubschman (145) took second, and seniors Dan Hicks (130) and Chris Hoffstot (140) were third. Hicks is the only newcomer at state. The other four all went last year, and it will be King's third straight trip north.

Scheffer had the most exciting match of the day. Upset by East St. Louis Lincoln's Charles DeWalt last week in the regional finals, Scheffer made amends with a 10-9 decision in the championship bout.

A reversal with 39 seconds left gave Scheffer the gold.

"Losing to him two times in a row would have been tough on me mentally going to state," Scheffer said. "But the guy's so strong. I got the reverse on him late in the match and rode him out."

Lincoln coach Henry Medley felt DeWalt threw his legs too high and that gave Scheffer the advantage to slip away.

"Charles was trying to roll him over," Medley said. "But when his legs went up, he lost his grip."

"It's like I said last week," DeWalt said. "The tables can turn at anytime. I'm not taking anything away from Scheffer. He beat me and was the better man, but I'd like another shot at him at the state meet."

King earned his third trip to state by nosing out Jesse Thornton of Carbondale, 7-5. But King felt the Warriors, who had seven wrestlers in the semifinals, should have had more state qualifiers.

"It's that time of year," King said. "Some of the guys just folded under pressure. I don't know what happened to (Mark) McKechan and some of the other guys. Their heads just weren't in it, I guess."

McKechan (135), a regional champion, was eliminated by Gaylen Michael of Highland 7-0 in the wrestlebacks. Jeff Heubschman (189) was pinned at 4:55 by Jason Reed of Centralia and Al Willaredt (275) dropped a 6-4 decision to Jamie Miller of Collinsville in their third-place matches.

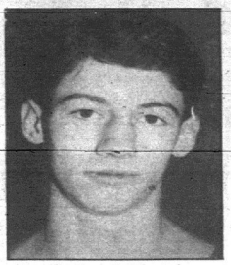

Granite City coach Mike Garland was disappointed but not angry with anyone.

"I'm not unhappy with the kids," he said. "I'm unhappy for them. This was a tough tournament, but getting five people out of here is quite an accomplishment. Anyone who considers this a setback for our program is crazy."

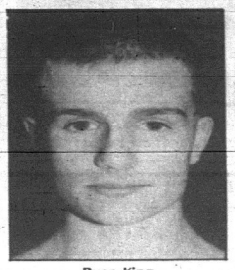

Meanwhile, four of Granite City's five state qualifiers have been there before.

"With the exception of Hicks, our people know what it's all about up there," Garland said. "There shouldn't be anyone in awe of the big building, the huge

Lady Warriors hold off East in regional opener

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

Belleville East was in a charitable mood Monday and the Lady Warriors were willing benefactors in a 58-50 regional victory.

Granite City (14-9) advanced to the second round Thursday against top-seeded Jerseyville. The winner advances to the sectional final four in Granite City next week. The Lady Lancers, who finished at 14-12, were a portrait of futility as they were an atrocious 17 of 80 from the floor, misfiring on numerous easy chances.

The Lady Warriors responded by hitting 16 of 19 free throws, including an 11-for-11 performance by junior Stephanie Kult (15 points). Kult also pulled down 14 rebounds, while sophomore center Jamie Cavaness cashed in with a game-high 22 points and 11 rebounds.

"We shoot free throws every morning and that practice has been the difference," said Kult. "We wanted to win this one to show that the last time we beat them (51-49 on Jan. 28) wasn't a fluke."

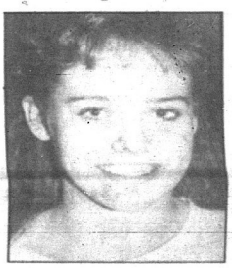

Now the Lady Warriors will have to prove their 75-39 loss in Jerseyville wasn't a fluke. The Lady Panthers improved to 22-1 with an 81-20 pasting of Roxana in their post-season opener Monday.

"We'll have our work cut out for us, that's for sure," said coach Allen Lobdell. "We have to improve our offensive output and handle their defensive pressure. It will take more than what we did tonight to beat Jerseyville."

"If everybody works hard like they did tonight, we'll give Jerseyville a good game," said Kult.

Granite City trailed only once in Monday's game and became the first road team to win in the sectional. The Lady Lancers trailed 51-47 with 2:41 left, but

Bad breaks eliminate Warrior hockey team, 5-4

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

On Feb. 16, 1987, the Warrior hockey team suffered a crushing defeat at the South County Recreation Complex to deny them a trip to the Arena.

Five years and one day later, deja vu set in.

In 1987, it was a sudden death overtime loss to Fox. This time, Parkway South's Matt Croak scored his third goal of the game into an empty net with 48 seconds left for a 5-4 win.

Granite City gave its all, but couldn't buy a break Monday as the Patriots (19-6) advanced to the Mid-States Club Hockey Association semifinals this weekend. Semifinalists are assured of a game at the Arena since both the league title game and third-place games are there Feb. 26.

But the Warriors (18-6-1) won't be there. For coach Jake Hinterser and the whole team — but particulary 10 seniors — it's a bitter pill to swallow.

"We just had no luck," said Hinterser. "Every time we made a little mistake it cost us."

The Warriors bounced back from a 2-0 deficit after one period to take a 3-2 lead in the second period as Mike Jaros scored two goals and assisted on Mike Naeve's goal. But just when it looked like the period would end, the Patriots scored from out of nowhere.

Mike Jaros
... 3-point night

After a scramble along the left wing boards, the puck came back to Mike Lynch at the point. He took a whack at the bouncing puck and Croak was somehow able to deflect it past Warrior goalie Brent Golden as the buzzer sounded.

After a brief discussion, the goal was allowed.

"I didn't think it was in before the period ended, but those were the breaks we got," said Hinterser. "We also didn't tie the guy up in front."

SHOTS ON GOAL

GRANITE CITY	6	9	7	—22
PARKWAY SOUTH	9	6	4	—19

Goalies: Granite City, Golden (19 shots, 14 saves); Parkway South, Griese (22 shots, 18 saves).

Todd Brereton gave the Patriots a 4-3 lead with a shot from just inside the blue line at 2:17 of the third period which Golden couldn't handle. The Warriors poured the pressure on from then on and finally tied the game with 50 seconds left on Derek Zirkelbach's end-to-end rush after Golden had been pulled for a sixth attacker.

But a tie would have done the Warriors no good since they lost the first game of the series Friday. Golden remained off for the faceoff at center ice, but Brereton won the draw to Croak who slapped the puck in from 90 feet away to bury the Warriors. It took two seconds.

"We had Brent out against my judgement," said Hinterser. "I had him back in there for the faceoff, but the players convinced me they could get the puck in their zone. We didn't tie anybody up right off the draw.

"But it was still a tremendous season. All the seniors played their hearts out. The effort and the method were there. I can't believe we lost to this team three times this year. I still think we have the better team."

Trojanettes eliminated by Dupo, 32-29

By Mike Kelly
Staff writer

The Dupo Tigerettes came to life in the fourth quarter and knocked off the Trojanettes 32-29 on Monday in the opening round of the Class A Alton Marquette Regional.

It was Dupo's first post-season win since 1987. Dawn Dugan led the Tigerettes (8-15) with 14 points. Joi Woodfork led the Trojanettes (3-16) with 14 points.

"This is what I've been expecting from Dugan all season," Dupo coach Vernon Ferry said. "Madison did a good job double-teaming Kara (Sopp), so we put the ball in Dawn's hands. She ran the offense and attacked the basket."

Madison held Sopp to only six points, but couldn't contain Dugan. She scored nine points in the last eight minutes, shot 50 percent from the floor and sank five free throws.

Dugan put Dupo on top to stay with 7:39 to play in the final stanza. Baskets by Sopp and Annette Pratt increased the lead to 25-20.

Four points from Woodfork made the score 28-24 with 3:31 left. But the Tigerettes held on at the free-throw line.

"We did an excellent job containing Sopp," Madison coach Johanna Wells said. "But Dugan surprised us. She didn't do much in our first two meetings, but she hurt us tonight."

While Madison's season ended, the Tigerettes will play top-seeded Brussels tonight. The winner of that game meets the Marquette-Columbia winner for the regional title Thursday.

Area winners honored at Granite Bowl

Illinois State and St. Louis District WIBC officials Joyce Steinrauf and Marie Hisel traveled to Granite Bowl recently to present awards to three local bowlers for high scores there in 1991.

Recipients of the awards were Rosemarie Hogue, who received the State Award for a 290 game; Betty Arbeiter, State Award for a 290 game and the WIBC and St. Louis District Awards for a 716 series which included a 278 game; and Nancy Marczak, State Award and a clock from the St. Louis District for a 300 game.

"I think it's great for the WIBC to recognize the achievements of these ladies," said Dennis Ross, owner/manager of Granite Bowl. "I look upon it as an award for us, too. Granite Bowl is traditionally one of the highest scoring houses in the metropolitan area. We pride ourselves in keeping our lanes in top scoring condition. When our bowlers reach this type of recognition, it makes me feel proud not only for them but also for our establishment."

Nancy Marczak (far left) receives a clock from Marie Hisel, president of the Illinois and St. Louis District WIBC (second from left), while Joyce Steinrauf (center), the secretary of the state organization, and fellow award winners Rosemarie Hogue (second from right) and Betty Arbeiter (far right) look on.

Granite Bowl's "Have A Ball" instructional league will begin March 1.

"This is a great opportunity for someone wanting to learn the game," said Dennis Ross, owner/manager of Granite Bowl. "It's a 12-week league and either Eric Rainwater or myself will be on hand each Sunday to teach the basics of bowling to beginners and give more detailed instruction to bowlers who want to improve their game."

Each league member will receive a custom-drilled Eurethene ball, instructions and three games of league bowling each week. After 12 weeks each member will get 10 free games of open play to practice what he has learned. The cost is $6.50.

The league will meet Sundays at 1 p.m. starting March 1. For more information, call Delores or Dennis at Granite Bowl (451-7800).

SIUE has two baseball camps scheduled for late February

Trojans back over .500 with narrow win over East

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

After falling to Madison 55-53 on Saturday, Belleville East coach Jim Reynolds threw down his clipboard and stalked off to the visitors locker room.

It's become a familiar routine for Reynolds, who saw his team fall to 3-18. Many of the losses have been close ones.

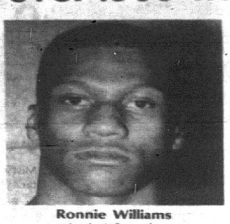

"We couldn't execute," said Reynolds. "It's very discouraging when you're 20 games into the season and still can't execute. That's why we're 3-18."

Ronnie Williams, who led all scorers with 23 points, sank two free throws with 39 seconds left to lift the Trojans back over .500 at 12-11. Madison needed the win after dropping four of the last five, including a 65-46 loss at Springfield Calvary on Friday which left them at the .500 level after a 6-0 start.

Coach Al Collins was just happy to escape with the win and the teamwork he saw made it that much better.

"It was a sweet victory," he said. "Seeing the guys pull together was also sweet. I really didn't think we'd win another game with the way we've been playing lately."

That prediction was still in question when the Lancers ambushed the Trojans on the way to a 16-9 lead after one quarter. East scored 12 in a row to erase an early 5-2 deficit.

"They didn't play like their record," said Collins. "They played like they were 17-3 instead of 3-17. They took it to us and we stood around watching them."

"They were pressing us and we were able to break that," said Reynolds. "Nobody's been able to press us. We had a lot of layups because they opened things up."

The Trojans woke up in the second quarter and cut the margin to one by halftime. Cernyn Macon's three-pointer with 40 seconds left drew Madison close. Macon was the only other Trojan in double figures with 13.

Ron Lott and Willie Woodson each picked up three fouls in the first half. Lott finished with only five points and Woodson had two.

"We were in foul trouble and we were a little tentative," said Collins. "The kids didn't let it get them down, though."

Garrett Johnson and Robb Hill (15 points), were the keys to the Lancers' early success. But they couldn't get over the hump in the second half.

"Our big weakness is we don't have a go-to guy we can depend on to score," said Reynolds. "We didn't have the confidence to win at the end."

It was 42-42 going into the fourth quarter, but Matt Curtis hit a three-pointer for a 45-42 lead which held up until Williams hit the winning free throws. East used its second timeout to try to freeze Williams and Hill was forced to use the final timeout with 26 seconds left.

The Lancers tried to get the ball inside, but Hill was trapped.

"There was mass confusion on that play," said Reynolds.

Collins said his team underestimated East, but was able to get the job done when it counted.

"The kids read the newspaper and they knew what East's record was," he said. "They thought it would be easy. I was proud of the way we played when the chips were down. We were very fortunate to come away with a win."

NOTES: The Trojans close the regular season with a home game Friday against Teutopolis and a game Saturday at Mid-County in the Northern Illinois Shootout against Spring Valley.

While Madison broke out of a slump, Venice stayed in its funk. The Red Devils lost for the fourth time in five games and fell to 13-10 with a 68-54 loss at Mounds Meridian on Saturday. Venice still isn't assured of a winning season at it has two tough home games this week. East St. Louis Lincoln came in Tuesday and Sumner (15-3) visits Thursday.

The Red Devils play Lovejoy at 7 p.m. next Tuesday in the Freeburg Regional opener and the Trojans follow up that night against Lebanon.

EVERY SUNROOM NEEDS A PEACHTREE.

And every family needs a sunroom – to entertain guests in, to breakfast in, to escape to with a good book. Peachtree insulating windows and patio doors are the perfect choice to create a gorgeous sunroom that won't "heat up" in the summer or "cool down" in the winter.

We display our full line in the Peachtree Planning Center, and our staff can help you select the design options that are right for you. Whether you're building a new house, remodeling, or just gathering ideas, we're here to help.

Best of all, the windows and doors in a Peachtree sunroom are guaranteed for as long as you own them.*

Home Show Feb. 21-23 at Fairgrounds

The Home Builders Association of Southwest Illinois is again marking their officials beginning of spring with their 14th annual Home Show the weekend of Friday, Feb. 21, Saturday, Feb. 22 and Sunday, Feb. 23.

The three-day Home Show will again be held at the Belle-Clair Exposition Hall, Route 13 and Route 159 in Belleville. It offers area residents a chance to view under one roof all the newest home decorating and remodeling ideas, new home construction as well as the newest products and home services.

Advance ticket sales at $1 each are well in progress and are available at area retailers and home builders who are association members. For ticket information call 234-4483. Again this year, admission is $2 at the Show for adults; children under 12 are free. Parking also is free.

The Home Show promises something for everyone as our area's top retailers, manufacturers, construction, remodeling and service industries combine to offer their products and services for inside and outside the home. Over 200 booths with displays and demonstrations will be offered by more than 125 exhibitors. Financing information will also be available from experts and lenders in the banking and mortgage industry.

A popular feature of the Home Show each year, the free seminars will again be presented on Saturday and Sunday. Expert presenters will direct each of the 14 planned seminars, which last less than an hour each. For a seminar schedule call 234-4483. Among seminar topics and demonstrations will be decks, patios, and retaining walls, wood burning safety, window fashions, seeding and lawn renovation, what to know when purchasing a home, window fashions and improving water for better living.

The Builders Showcase section of the show will highlight panels displaying the builders' homes and maps of their developments. Specific homes and a variety of subdivision locations, and lifestyles generally will be shown. It offers an excellent opportunity to get an overview of the variety of home construction available in the area.

crowds or the competition. I feel very good about our chances.

"We have five solid wrestlers going to state, and they have a legitimate chance of placing. It's all up to them now. They just have to wrestle hard."

And Garland doesn't believe in pressure.

"People use pressure to make diamonds," he said. "The main thing is to go up there and wrestle like you have all season. The rest will take care of itself."

Those staying home, however, will get another chance next week. Two dual meet victories at the Bethalto Sectional on Feb. 25 will send the Warriors to Bloomington for the team finals on Feb. 29.

"A lot of our kids will get a second chance to go to state," Garland said. "Not many kids in this sectional have that kind of opportunity. The main thing is not getting down and staying in shape during the next two weeks. There are still some matches left in the season."

Kult's three-point play put it out of reach. The basket appeared to be out of reach for East all night. Guard Kelly Higgins missed 14 field goal attempts and center Jennifer Cipfl was 0 for 10.

"We did not play very well," said Lancer coach Paul James. "Shooting-wise, we couldn't get anything to go down. There's nothing you can do about it. We had our chances."

Bee Liggins, who led East with 16 points, gave the Lady Lancers their only lead at 18-16 after Cavaness had picked up two quick fouls. But Dana Dresch (10 points) put Granite City ahead for good on a free throw. Karen Sykes (10 points) was the fourth Lady Warrior in double figures.

"The girls were able to hold up under the press," said Lobdell. "Jamie has been super the past few games. And Stephanie came through with a big game. When the girls play together, they can be a good team."

The Lady Warriors are 11-1 when they score 50 or more points. They're 3-8 when they score fewer.

"It's a puzzle to me how we can score 60 points one night and then less than 40 the next," Lobdell said. "They know what to do. They just have to do it consistently."

Pick Cherries!

By Janice Denham
Staff writer

Winter needs a bright spot. All the bright and rosy reds of February provide it.

It is a bit early for cherry blossom time in the U.S., but Washington's birthday offers a chance to ignore the weather and let cherry pickers gather the cheery fruit.

Cherries come in a variety of styles. Most adults remember a food from their childhood that had maraschino cherries on or in it. Every family has an aunt who decorated cakes with them. Canned cherries in juice or sweet syrup serve as a delicious option for every kind of salad from Chinese noodle to gelatin. They become elegant matched with meat, like pork or chicken. They are memorable when warmed with brandy and served flaming over ice cream.

Canned cherry pie filling is a product with a life all its own. Various brands use different types of cherries and offer a different ratio of thickening to fruit.

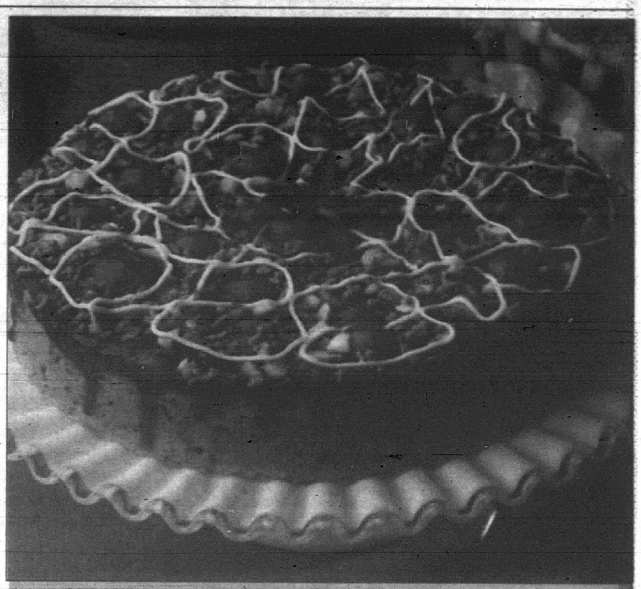

The New York Cherry Growers Association sponsored its fourth annual Cherry Creations Recipe and Idea Contest nationwide last year. It includes one category for a new idea using cherry pie filling. This year's winner combines it with pineapple chunks and sliced banana as a salad, or with coconut and whipped cream as dessert served over ice cream or in a tart shell.

Another bright idea for using cherries is for pinwheels, an easy breakfast, brunch or late night snack. Start about 45 minutes before serving, by draining and reserving liquid from 1 can (16 ounces) pitted tart cherries, then draining cherries on paper towels. Toss them lightly with 4 teaspoons flour.

Unroll 2 cans (8 ounces each) refrigerated crescent rolls as flat dough. Spread lightly with softened butter or margarine, then spread cherries evenly on dough. Roll each piece jellyroll fashion. Cut each roll in 3 slices. Bake, cut-side down, on greased cookie sheet 15 to 18 minutes at 450°.

Meanwhile, in small saucepan, stir ⅓ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch and ¼ teaspoon cinnamon with a little reserved liquid until combined, then stir in remaining liquid and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until clear and thickened. Top pinwheels with sauce to serve.

Fresh cherries from Chile were available earlier this winter, but the next fresh crop will have to wait until those from California become ripe in early summer. So cherry-picking time in the market will be down the canned and frozen food aisles to celebrate George's birthday.

CHERRY GINGERBREAD

1½ cups 100 percent bran cereal
1 cup milk
1½ cups flour
2 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. ginger
½ tsp. cloves
1 cup light molasses
½ cup margarine, melted
3 eggs
1 can (21 oz.) cherry pie filling
Confectioner's sugar, if desired

In small bowl, combine bran and milk. Let stand 5 minutes. In another bowl, combine flour, baking soda, cinnamon, ginger and cloves.

In large bowl, using electric mixer at medium speed, beat molasses, margarine and eggs until smooth. Alternately blend in bran mixture and flour mixture.

Spread batter in greased and floured 13-by-9-inch baking pan. Spoon dollops of cherry filling over batter in four rows of three, using entire can of filling.

Bake at 350° for 35 to 40 minutes until cake springs back when touched lightly in center. Cool completely in pan or wire rack. Sprinkle with confectioner's sugar. Cut in squares.
Makes 12 servings.

CHERRY PINEAPPLE LAYERED SALAD

(Winner, salad category, Cherry Creations Recipe and Idea Contest)

3 pkg. (4 servings each) gelatin (cherry, lemon and raspberry flavors)
2½ cup milk
1 can (8 oz.) crushed pineapple, drained
16 marshmallows
⅔ cup walnut pieces
1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese
1 can (21 oz.) cherry pie filling
1 cup frozen whipped topping, thawed
Chopped or leaf lettuce

Prepare cherry gelatin according to directions. Chill in 9-by-13-inch glass pan until set.

Combine milk, marshmallows and cream cheese in double boiler, over very low heat or in microwave oven. Cook and stir until all is melted and well blended. Stir in lemon gelatin until well blended. Cool. Stir in crushed pineapple, two-thirds cherry pie filling and walnuts. Fold in whipped topping. Spread mixture over red gelatin. Refrigerate until set.

Prepare raspberry gelatin as instructed on package. Pour over lemon layer. Chill until firm.

Spread remaining cherry pie filling over gelatin as garnish. Cut in squares. Serve on bed of lettuce.

CHERRY CRISP COFFEECAKE

2 cups flour
1 cup 100 percent bran cereal
2 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. cinnamon
½ cup margarine, softened
1 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
½ cup milk
1 can (21 oz.) cherry pie filling
Almond Bran Topping
Confectioner's sugar glaze, if desired
Fresh mint sprig for garnish, if desired

In medium bowl, combine flour, bran, baking powder and cinnamon.

In large bowl, using electric mixer at high speed, beat margarine and granulated sugar until creamy. Blend in eggs and milk. Stir in flour mixture until smooth; batter will be thick.

Spread batter in greased 9-inch springform pan. Spoon cherry filling over batter. Sprinkle with Almond Bran Topping.

Bake at 350° for 50 to 55 minutes. Cool in pan on wire rack 25 minutes. Remove outside ring of pan. Cool completely on wire rack.

Drizzle with confectioner's sugar glaze. Garnish with mint sprig. Cut in wedges to serve.

Almond Bran Topping: Mix ½ cup coarsely chopped almonds, ¼ cup 100 percent bran cereal, 2 tablespoons sugar and 2 tablespoons softened margarine until crumbly.

Makes 12 servings.

Homemade breakfast biscuits ease time, money and calories

By Linda Foster Benedict
Consumer/Health Information
Univ. of Missouri-Columbia
(Special to the Journals)

Wise Ways
Fast nutrition on a budget

The fast-food industry has reshaped some of our attitudes about food. Whoever heard of using three buns and two hamburger patties before a sandwich with a "Mac" in its title came along?

Sometimes the home cook can learn from the pros — about food combinations and speed — to come up with alternatives in the home.

Take the example of breakfast biscuits with cinnamon, sugar and raisins. I came up with a copy for my family that is nutritious, cheap and fast. My experiment must work because my super-critical 9-year-old son liked them. And it satisfied me because it was easy, fast, cheap and fit into our daily plan for nutritious meals.

My cinnamon raisin biscuits also help warm the kitchen on a cold winter morning. They take less than 10 minutes to prepare and, while they are in the oven, for 12 minutes, I have just enough time to take my morning shower.

The biscuits, with only 25 percent of their calories from fat, fit a nutrition goal recommended by University of Missouri nutritionists that calories from fat be kept under 30 percent. Based on a hearty nine-biscuits-per-recipe, one biscuit has only 218 calories and costs just 12 cents, even with the frosting.

A biscuit provides one of four servings from the bread and cereal that adults and children need every day. The raisins add one of 10 milligrams iron children need daily.

Barbara Willenberg, a university extension nutritionist, points out women in child-bearing years need 18 milligrams iron and "every little bit helps" to meet the daily goal.

Quick 'n easy cinnamon raisin biscuits

2 cups flour
1 tbsp. baking powder
1 tbsp. sugar
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. cinnamon
¼ cup shortening
⅔ cup cold milk
½ cup raisins

1. Mix together flour, baking powder, sugar, salt and cinnamon in a large mixing bowl until color is consistent.
2. Cut shortening into dry ingredients until texture is like coarse crumbs.
3. Make a well. Add milk and raisins all at once.
4. Stir quickly with a fork only until dough follows fork around bowl.
5. Scoop up dough with fingers and knead gently to soft consistency, no more than a couple minutes.
6. Turn dough onto lightly floured surface. I use a pastry cloth dusted with flour. Roll to ½-inch thickness.
7. Dip cutter into flour. Cut dough straight down — no twisting.
8. Bake on ungreased baking sheet at 450° for 12 to 15 minutes.

Icing for biscuits

Up to 1 cup confectioner's sugar
½ tsp. vanilla
Just enough cold milk to keep icing from getting runny

1. Measure sugar into a bowl. I usually use less than 1 cup.
2. Add vanilla and a tiny stream of milk. Start to stir.
3. Add milk in tiny increments until all the dryness and lumps are gone.

This recipe makes nine to 16 biscuits, depending on the size of the biscuit cutter. I cut out eight with my cutter, then I pat together a ninth, which my son likes best because of the funny shape.

Tips: I never roll the dough a second time because this makes the biscuits too tough.

Cold milk is essential. If it is warm, biscuits will not be as flaky. I mix raisins with milk.

I place the biscuits on the baking sheet so they touch. That makes it easier and faster to add icing. Frankly, I like them with no icing, but the icing adds a little appeal and makes them more like the fast-food variety.

Let the biscuits cool about 15 minutes before icing.

Rapid dinner for two offers time to enjoy

For Two Or a Few

A rapidly growing number of people feel they call themselves cooks only in jest. The reality is they do not cook as often as they would like because they only can think of foods to prepare that take a lot of time.

And time is not something they have, particularly during the week and often on weekends. To satisfy this work-week dinner crunch, settle on Asian-Style Salmon Noodle Soup.

This meal-in-one soup uses ingredients already found in the cupboard. Check to see if one of them is missing, then add it to this week's shopping list.

Start with canned salmon. Rich, delicious flavor combined with a favorable nutrition profile makes canned salmon a must for every pantry. Red salmon, also known as Alaskan sockeye, is known for its bright red color and rich flavor. More economically priced, pink salmon has a lighter color and more delicate flavor.

Those concerned with calcium intake should know that the tiny bones in canned salmon are cooked thoroughly during processing, which makes them soft and completely edible, so they are getting a big calcium boost in salmon. Just mash them lightly with a fork, then blend into the recipe.

Ramen-style soup mix is another must for busy cooks. Use it as the base, then add extra flavor with soy sauce, lemon juice, garlic and ginger. Add carrots and pea pods, or make it celery instead, and a delicious bowl of soup with hearty home-made flavor is ready in less than 10 minutes.

Asian-style salmon noodle soup

1 can (about 8 oz.) salmon
2½ cups water
½ cup thinly sliced carrot
½ pkg. (3 oz. size) ramen-style soup
1 cup trimmed pea pods
2 green onions, cut in 1 inch pieces
1½ tsp. grated fresh or ½ tsp. ground ginger
1 clove garlic, minced
1 tsp. low-salt soy sauce
1 tsp. lemon juice
½ tsp. sesame oil, if desired

Drain and flake salmon, mashing bones lightly with fork.

Bring water to boil in large saucepan. Add carrots. Bring to boil. Break noodles in half and drop into water. Simmer 1½ minutes.

Stir in peas, onion, ginger, garlic and salmon. Simmer about 1½ minute. Gently stir in soy sauce, lemon juice, sesame oil and half the soup seasoning packet.

Serve immediately.

Makes 2 servings; 300 calories, 26 g protein, 25 g carbohydrate, 11 g fat, 58 mg cholesterol, 1,105 mg sodium and 5 g dietary fiber each.

Harvest-fruit brown rice

2½ cups water
1 cup uncooked brown rice
1 cup peeled, chopped apple
¼ cup chopped onion
½ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. margarine
½ cup slivered almonds
½ cup dried apricots, chopped
2 tbsp. honey

Bring water to boil in large saucepan. Stir in rice, apple, onion and salt. Return to boil. Reduce heat. Simmer, covered tightly, about 50 minutes.

In small skillet, melt margarine. Lightly brown almonds. Stir into hot cooked rice with apricots and honey.

Makes 6 servings; 260 calories, 9 g fat (29 percent of calories), 6 g protein, 200 mg sodium and 43 g carbohydrate each.

No matter how the crust folds around it, pizza — even in the form of Barbecued Chicken Calzone — is pizza with a thin disguise.

Dough holds in melted filling related to pizza

Since its quiet debut in America's first pizzeria nearly nine decades ago, pizza has risen from humble Italian pie to all-American favorite. Originally found only in Italian-American neighborhoods, its popularity grew with the return of soldiers from Italy after World War II.

Barbecued Chicken Calzones take a cue from the Italian original. Calzone was first made in Naples where its easy-to-handle shape was favored for snacking. This version combines the best of both worlds with barbecue-flavored chicken filling inside the traditional half-moon shape of calzone.

Stuffed Shrimp Pizza is based on the famous Chicago-style stuffed pizzas that have both a bottom and top crust. Actually, Chicago only popularized the two-crusted pizza. It is believed to have originated with the nuns of the San Vito monastery in Italy. The recipe featured here rivals the best of Chicago and San Vito pizzas with its novel, contemporary filling.

Barbecued chicken calzones

- 1 tbsp. plus ½ cup cornmeal
- 4 tbsp. oil
- 1 large clove garlic, minced
- 1 tsp. chili powder
- ¼ tsp. pepper
- 4 boned, skinned chicken breast halves, cut in thin strips
- ¾ cup barbecue sauce
- 1 pkg. (16 oz.) hot roll mix
- 1½ cups hot water (120° to 130°)
- ½ cup diced red onion
- 1½ tsp. chopped fresh cilantro
- 1½ cups grated provolone cheese
- Oil and cornmeal

Grease large cookie sheet. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon cornmeal.

In large skillet over medium-high heat, heat 2 tablespoons oil, garlic, chili powder and pepper until hot. Add chicken. Cook and stir until chicken is no longer pink and all liquid has been absorbed. Stir in barbecue sauce.

In large bowl, combine hot roll mix and ½ cup cornmeal with yeast from foil packet in mix. Stir in hot water and 2 tablespoons oil until dough pulls away from side of bowl.

Turn out onto lightly floured surface. With greased or floured hands, shape dough into ball. Knead dough 5 minutes until smooth. Divide into 6 pieces.

For each calzone, roll one ball in 6-inch circle. Place about ¼ cup chicken mixture on half of circle, spreading to within 1 inch of edge. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon onion and ¼ teaspoon cilantro. Top with ¼ cup cheese.

Fold dough in half over filling. Press edges together to seal. Flute edges. Place on cookie sheet. Repeat with remaining 5 pieces. Cut 3 slits in top of each calzone.

Cover with plastic wrap and cloth towel. Let rise in warm place (80° to 85°) for 15 minutes.

Uncover calzones. Brush each lightly with additional oil. Sprinkle with cornmeal. Bake at 425° for 15 to 20 minutes until golden brown.

Stuffed shrimp pizza

- 12 oz. fresh or frozen, uncooked shrimp, thawed if necessary
- 3 to 4 lemon slices
- ¼ to ½ tsp. coarse black pepper
- 1½ tsp. dill
- 1 pkg. (9 oz.) frozen asparagus, thawed, drained
- 1 tbsp. margarine or butter
- 1 tbsp. sesame seed
- 1 jar (7 oz.) roasted red peppers, drained, chopped
- 2 cups (8 oz.) shredded mozzarella cheese
- 1 pkg. (16 oz.) hot roll mix
- 1¼ cups hot water (120° to 130°)
- 2 tbsp. oil
- Sesame seeds

In medium saucepan, heat 1 quart water, lemon and pepper to boiling. Add shrimp. Cook 3 minutes or until pink. Drain. Remove lemon. Sprinkle shrimp with ½ teaspoon dill.

In small saucepan over low heat, melt margarine. Add sesame seed. Cook and stir until seeds are toasted and margarine is golden brown. Remove from heat. Stir in drained asparagus.

Grease 12-inch pizza pan or large cookie sheet.

In large bowl, combine hot roll mix and 1 teaspoon dill with yeast from foil packet. Stir in hot water and oil until dough pulls away from side of bowl. Turn out onto lightly floured surface. With greased or floured hands, shape dough into ball. Knead dough 5 minutes or until smooth.

Place two-thirds dough on greased pan. Roll or pat into 12-inch circle. Top with 1 cup cheese, roasted peppers, shrimp and asparagus. Sprinkle with remaining 1 cup cheese.

Roll out remaining one-third dough to 12-inch circle. Place on top of pizza. Tuck edges under bottom crust. Pinch to seal. With sharp knife make slashes in top of pizza for ventilation. Cover loosely with plastic wrap and cloth towel. Let rise in warm place (80° to 85°) for 15 minutes.

Uncover pizza. Brush lightly with additional oil and sprinkle with sesame seed. Bake for 20 to 25 minutes at 425° until golden brown. Allow to set 5 minutes before serving.

Microwaved hamburger takes new outlook for shape, flavor

Ground beef plus the microwave are the perfect equation that adds up to economical, quick family meals.

Microwave Oh!-Burgers and Microwave Tamale-Style Pie are microwave dishes that are both easy to make and great tasting.

The basis of both these family-pleasing dishes is versatile ground beef. When choosing fresh ground beef, look for a bright cherry-red color in a package that is consistently cold, has not been torn or punctured, and is wrapped tightly.

The special shape of Microwave Oh!-Burgers will bring exclamations from those who recognize their old favorite with a zippy new look. Ground beef is shaped gently into flat doughnut-shaped patties to ensure even cooking in a microwave. For a change of pace, serve burgers on onion or garlic bagels instead of the traditional burger buns.

Microwave Tamale-Style Pie is reminiscent of the popular Mexican tamale. A microwave-safe colander or sieve is a convenient tool for cooking the beef crumbles and draining the fat for this dish. The beef, onion and garlic mixture simply is combined with a hearty dash of southwestern spices, tomatoes and refried beans, then microwaved to heat through.

Microwave oh-burgers

1 lb. ground beef (80 percent lean)
1 tsp. Seasoning Mix
4 hamburger buns, split
Assorted toppings: sliced tomato, onion and lettuce

Shape beef into four (½-inch thick) patties. Form a ¾-inch hole in center of each patty.

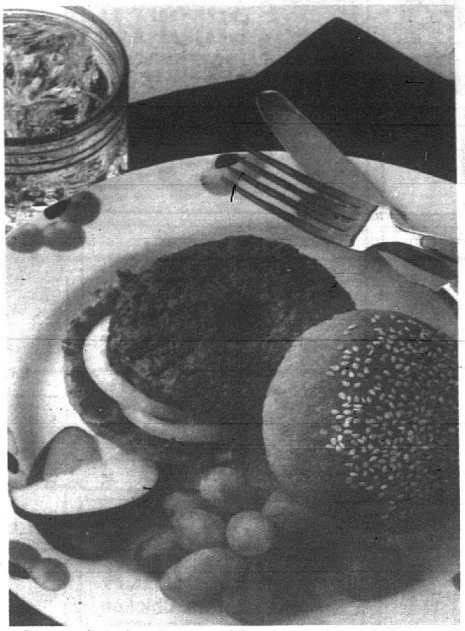

Place patties on microwave-safe roasting rack in baking dish. Sprinkle each lightly with Seasoning Mix. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on high power 3½ to 4 minutes, rotating dish a half-turn after 2 minutes. Let stand, covered, 1 minute.

Place burgers on hamburger bun bottoms. Top each with desired toppings. Cover with hamburger bun tops.

Makes 4 servings; 349 calories, 24 g protein, 18 g fat, 22 g carbohydrate, 434 mg sodium and 69 mg cholesterol each.

For 2 servings, divide ingredients in half to form 2 patties. Microwave on high power 2½ to 3 minutes. Let stand 1 minute.

Seasoning Mix: Combine 1 tablespoon garlic salt, 2 teaspoons flour, 2 teaspoons pepper and 1¼ teaspoons paprika in shaker.

Burgers that play ring-around-the-microwave cook faster and more thoroughly with a hole poked through their middle.

Microwave tamale-style pie

1 lb. ground beef (80 percent lean)
½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tsp. chili powder
¼ tsp. cumin
¼ tsp. salt
1 can (10 oz.) diced tomatoes with green chilies, drained, or 1 can (10 oz.) tomatoes, diced (for milder flavor)
1 can (about 8 oz.) refried beans
½ cup (2 oz.) shredded cheddar cheese
1 cup coarsely crushed corn chips, unsalted if possible

Combine ground beef, onion and garlic. Arrange in ring in microwave-safe sieve or small colander. Place sieve in 9-inch round microwave-safe baking dish. Microwave on high power 3 minutes. Stir to break up beef. Continue cooking on high 1 to 2 minutes until beef is only slightly pink. Pour off drippings.

Place beef in baking dish. Sprinkle chili powder, cumin and salt over beef, stirring to combine.

Stir in tomatoes and refried beans. Microwave on high power, covered with waxed paper, 6 to 7 minutes until hot, rotating dish a half-turn after 4 minutes.

Sprinkle cheese and tortilla chips around edge.

Let stand 2 minutes.

Makes 4 servings; 476 calories, 30 g protein, 27 g fat, 28 g carbohydrate, 823 mg sodium and 81 mg cholesterol each.

Recipe

Ravioli 'n sausage in sauce

½ lb. mild Italian sausage, casing removed
¼ cup chopped green bell pepper
3 cups spaghetti sauce
1 pkg. (about 14 oz.) frozen cheese-filled ravioli, cooked, drained
Grated parmesan cheese for garnish

In 10-inch skillet over medium-high heat, cook sausage and pepper until sausage is thoroughly cooked and no pink remains, stirring to separate meat. Stir in spaghetti sauce and ravioli. Heat through.

Sprinkle with cheese, if desired.

Makes 4 servings.

Book offers remedies for common parenting errors

By Jane Cosby
Correspondent

It is said that to err is human, but that is small consolation to parents trying to live with the fruits of their parenting mistakes.

Worried parents can take heart because authors Charles E. Schaefer and Theresa Foy DiGeronimo have outlined the 20 most common mistakes parents of new babies make — and the solutions to those problems — in their new book, "Raising Baby Right (Prince Paperbacks, $6).

The small paperback offers remedies for each of the following parenting traps. New parents can take these as precautions. Parents of older children can mark which mistakes they made.

1. Ignoring the symptoms of stress that can come with a new baby. Chronic fatigue, feelings of being overwhelmed and the inability to relax are all stresses that often accompany having a new baby.

2. Hesitating to comfort a crying baby. You cannot spoil an infant by picking him up when he cries. So don't wait until the baby is hysterical before trying to quiet him.

3. Despairing over colic. Parents are not to blame for colic. It is a difficult situation that parents need to deal with, but they should not feel guilty about it.

4. Letting crying make you crazy. The average amount of crying at 6 weeks of age is almost three hours per day. Crying is normal and healthy.

5. Jumping into bonding. Bonding is a complex process of strong emotional attachment that continues throughout childhood. It does not have to occur in the first 10 minutes of life.

6. Putting your baby to sleep. Babies need to learn to put themselves to sleep.

7. Feeding to soothe. Babies should be fed because they need the nourishment. Try other ways to soothe the child.

8. Bringing your baby into your bed. This is only a problem if it bothers you. But be aware that a habit developed during infancy will be difficult to break when the child is older.

9. Discouraging love objects. Babies and children need emotional security. If an object can give that to your child, do not deny it to him.

10. Misreading your baby's temperament. Babies come equipped with their own unique personalities. Parents need to adjust to the characteristics of their own baby.

11. Not using baby talk. Research has shown that every culture in the world has some form of baby talk and that it encourages language development.

12. Delaying separation. Separation anxiety is a normal part of child development, but parents can ease it by initiating periods of separation early in the child's life.

13. Fueling marital tensions. Marital tensions often accompany the arrival of a new baby, and parents need to pay attention to their marriage before trouble starts.

14. Trying to be a perfect parent. Forget it; it is impossible.

15. Trying to raise a superbaby. Forget this, too. It is impossible and trying to do it could harm your child.

16. Underestimating the value of infant play. Play is how infants learn about their world and learn to master essential skills.

17. Ignoring yourself.

18. Struggling alone with the baby blues. Some postpartum depression is normal, but in a severe case the mother should seek help.

19. Slighting grandparents. They have a lot to offer your child.

20. Misunderstanding siblings. The appearance of a sibling can can cause feeling of great loss and insecurity in an older child.

(I made at least 12 of these mistakes with my babies.)

Ole Scouters holds its second reunion

Three hundred and twenty six years of the Scouting experience was represented in the 12 men who were present at the Ole Scouters and Friends Reunion, held Jan. 8 at the McDonalds Restaurant in Pontoon Beach.

The event was the second reunion for the group, which meets at the restaurant every Wednesday morning for an 8 a.m. breakfast; there is a standing invitation for any scouter to attend.

Some of the members are still active in Scouting. All said they enjoy reminiscing about the bygone days, discussing present activities, and planning for future events. They also said they enjoy sharing unforgettable experiences they have had in Scouting through the years.

LeRoy Stark, a Scouter himself for 25 years and still active, shared with the group the personal motto of Eagle Calvin Brown of Bradenton, Fla. Brown has just been honored for 65 years in Scouting and has been written up in the National Publication of Eagle Magazine.

Browns motto reads:

"When I am standing to be judged
Before the great white throne
Where one can hear the righteous sing
And the sinners moan.
I will want no better advocate to help me with my final plea
Than to have some small boy step up and say, 'God, he sured helped me!'"

Present at the reunion were: (with the number of years each spent in Scouting) John Kuehn (14), Al Sanders (30), Marvin Wiedner (21), Jack Dorris (10), Floyd Jordan (43), Ron Luebben (34), Bob Moske (24), Ralph E. Thomas (9), LeRoy Stark (25), Joe Schuster (23), Rev. Willard Myers (10), Glen Hommert (53) and Carl Aldridge (30).

Script drew Gere to 'Final Analysis'

By Harry Hamm
Correspondent

Richard Gere says it was the strength of the script for "Final Analysis" that convinced him to headline in the film, his first since the phenomenally successful "Pretty Woman" in 1990.

Gere, 42, admits to being choosy about the film that would follow "Pretty Woman." He says he wanted a strong role, one that wasn't reminiscent of any other part he had played.

In "Final Analysis," Gere portrays Dr. Isaac Barr, a psychiatrist in San Francisco who becomes embroiled in a murder plot after becoming involved with the sister of one of his patients. Uma Thurman plays Barr's patient, and Kim Basinger is the sultry sister.

"I think my character's profession is something that attracted me to the role," Gere says. "Analysts are usually secondary characters, except in comedies.

"But Isaac Barr, as a psychiatrist, is a student of emotion," Gere said. "And I think in this respect, he could be a private eye or a cop. In all of those professions, there are secrets to be learned."

Also starring in "Final Analysis" are Eric Roberts, the brother of Gere's "Pretty Woman" co-star, Julia Roberts, and Keith David. Roberts plays Basinger's husband, a passionate Greek gangster. David plays a tough police detective determined to get to the bottom of a murder investigation involving Basinger's character.

"Although Eric is probably a little younger that the character was originally conceived, he brought something unexpected to the role," Gere says. "Eric is able to play the tough guy without making him a cliche. Although he's very scary in the movie, you can also understand why Heather stays with him. Eric is a very persuasive actor."

And Gere says David provided a great deal of the film's powerful forward momentum.

"A lot of the movie's thrust comes from his character's dogged pursuit of the truth, which may not be the same as Isaac Barr's pursuit of the truth," Gere says. "Therein lies their conflict, and Keith lends the character a great deal of originality and credibility."

Gere, who was born in Philadelphia, Penn., attended the University of Massachusetts where he studied philosophy and drama. A tireless activist on behalf of international human rights, Gere has lead the way for the establishment of the Tibet House New York, an organization dedicated to the preservation of Tibet's cultural and religious heritage.

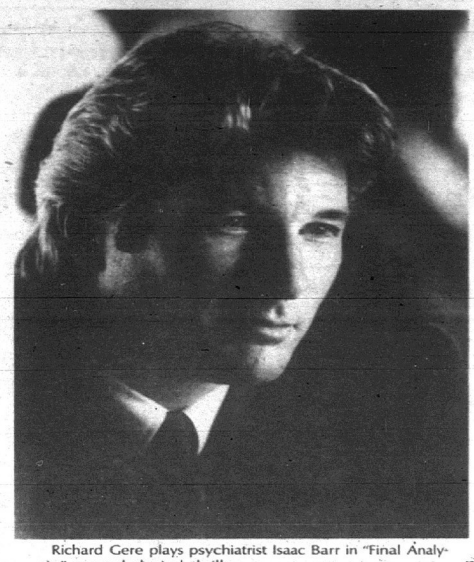

Gere also traveled to Central America in the summer of 1986, which lead to his support of El Rescate, a Los Angeles-based agency that provides legal and social services to Central American refugees in this country.

He has testified twice before the Congressional Human Rights Caucus concerning human rights violations in El Salvador and Tibet.

Gere's acting career began in 1975, with director Terrence Malick's highly acclaimed "Days of Heaven."

Gere says he chooses his roles more carefully these days, looking for pictures with both big and little edges over the competition. He says the setting for "Final Analysis" in San Francisco was an important plus.

"With its hills and water and fog, San Francisco is perfect for a psychological thriller. It's physical aspects certainly have to do with state of the mind. It's both very beautiful and forbidding at the same time."

Richard Gere plays psychiatrist Isaac Barr in "Final Analysis," a psychological thriller.

'Shining Through' heavily cast, overwritten movie

By Harry Hamm
Correspondent

If you're a person who doesn't believe they make movies like they used to, the new motion picture "Shining Through" will only confirm that lament.

Based on Susan Isaac's best-selling novel of the same title from 1988, "Shining Through" is the most heavily cast, underacted and overwritten movie I've seen in months.

Melanie Griffith stars as Linda Voss, a German speaking, half Irish-half Jew from the Bronx who, in 1940, gets a job as a secretary to an enigmatic attorney named Ed Leland, played by Michael Douglas. Leland takes secret trips and never smiles. Linda is sure Ed is a spy.

Soon Ed and Linda are an item, but as things heat up romantically, the Japanese bomb Pearl Harbor. Next we learn that Ed is actually a colonel in the U.S. Army and a spy.

When one of his key operatives is killed in Berlin, Linda promotes herself into the job on the very solid rationale that she's an expert chef and can cook great food for high-ranking German officers, a talent that will most certainly get her into their homes where she can take pictures of secret German documents about "bombs that fly," as Leland puts it.

Linda makes it to Berlin where things go wrong, of course. But she stays the course, motivated by the desire to free three of her relatives from Hitler's grasp.

Griffith's character appears as an old woman who tells the film's story as she is interviewed in the present day by the BBC about her wartime experiences.

Melanie Griffith is frail and whiny as Linda. Her acting is purely external. Her character exhibits the brains and nerve of a hamster. Lines like "Hitler's dreaded storm-troopers" and "We were sisters forever immediately" only flatten an already cliche-ridden script.

Also appearing in "Shining Through" are Liam Neeson as a widowed German officer who hires Linda as a nanny and Sir John Gielgud, who is under-used in a minor role as an American operative in Germany.

"Shining Through" is a handsome picture, but the film has no real substance, unless you count romance novel scripts as meaningful entertainment.

Practical Prescriptions for Good Health

CARING FOR YOUR CHILDREN'S TEETH

- February is National Children's Dental Health Month and it's a good time to remember that it's never too early to visit a dentist. Tooth decay is the major cause of tooth loss in children, and most cavities occur before the age of three. However, one in 10 children between the ages of five and 11 have never even visited a dentist.

If your family requires prescription medication, remember: Phar-Mor Guarantees That We'll Beat Any Competitor's Prescription Price

"If it makes sense to reward a CEO in good times... and to reward a CEO in bad times because you need to keep him with the company...then just when, pray tell, is the CEO every going to get his pay cut?"

— Graef Crystal

Charles F. Knight

Top dogs still earning top wages

By Roger McGrath
Correspondent

One of the nation's top compensation consultants, Graef Crystal went in search of excess in executive paychecks — and he didn't have far to look. The average 1990 compensation of the chief executives of the nation's 202 biggest firms was $2.8 million.

That is 160 times the $17,430 the average nonfarm worker earned, and nine times what the average Japanese chief executive officer earns, almost four times the average German CEO.

Crystal notes these wages in "In Search of Excess: The Overcompensation of American Executives." Through a litany of examples, the 264-page book (W.W. Norton & Co.) indicts the executive compensation system.

Executive raises are often routinely bestowed, even when corporate performance is less than stellar. Crystal says the rationale for ever-increasing executive pay is illogical and ludicrous.

Given the propensity of U.S. boards of directors to bestow ever-higher rewards on top executives, the disparity between the executive suite and the factory floor, the office staff and the rest of society probably widened last year, despite the recession.

Crystal's main complaint: "If it makes sense to reward a CEO in good times, because that is only just, and if it makes sense to reward a CEO in bad times because you need to keep him with the company, and if there are only two types of times — good times and bad times — then just when, pray tell, is the CEO every going to get his pay cut?

"The answer is, distressingly, never."

He proffers a number of proposals designed to rein in executive compensation, but reform will require aggressive action by various agencies, most notably the Securities and Exchange Commission, that aren't wont to stir.

Crystal, who rails against $1 million salaries, undermines his own position. In a June article for Fortune magazine, his computer model suggested that August Busch III, with $1.8 million in cash compensation and stock options from Anheuser-Busch, is underpaid. St. Louis' most over-paid executive: Emerson Electric's Charles Knight, according to Crystal's calculations.

His apparent waffling is due to his past. Crystal confesses he was a leader among those advising boards of directors to increase executive pay.

Pay levels have gotten out of hand, largely because the outside directors who set executive pay are ill-informed, poorly advised and easily manipulated by the CEO, the man responsible for naming them directors, Crystal says. Directors who criticize the CEO's pay package aren't generally invited back.

Of 1990's average compensation of $2.8 million, $1.4 million is actually salary and bonus. Especially galling, he says, is the practice of guaranteeing the annual bonus, meaning its size isn't tied to corporate performance. Time Warner Inc., for instance, promised senior executives 1990 bonuses equal to 125 percent of their salary.

The remaining $1.4 million is the value of stock options, restricted stock grants and other forms of long-term incentive compensation.

Crystal, a professor at the University of California at Berkeley, supports only stock options, which give the executive the right to buy shares of his company for a set price at some future date. If the stock price has climbed, the executive reaps a reward, the difference between the option price and the presumably higher market price. Conversely, if the stock price falls, the executive isn't rewarded.

Restricted stock is "free," it costs the executive nothing, it is a present from the board of directors. The executive profits whether stock prices advance or decline.

Crystal wrings his hands over another trend. Some boards routinely "swap" high-priced options and restricted stock grants for lower-priced awards, a policy that, in effect, rewards CEOs for driving down his stock's price.

Such shenanigans are why the pay of Time Warner co-CEO Steven Ross averaged $16 million a year from 1973 through 1989.

To those who say Ross is the exception, that executive pay levels are only a drop in the bucket compared with a corporation's overall costs, Crystal says that, according to his studies, each $1 the CEO is paid above the industry average increases total salary expense $40 to $60. Because other senior executives must also be paid more than average to maintain the so-called salary structure.

And then there's the effect high executive pay has on the company's ordinary workers. When the CEO gets a hefty increase, they want more money, too, Crystal says.

Salary rankings of St. Louis executives

Here's the salaries of the top St. Louis area executives, based on total 1990 compensation*:

Charles Knight
Emerson Electric Co. ..... $4.13 million

Richard Mahoney
Monsanto Co. ..... $3.11 million

William Stiritz
Ralston Purina Inc. ..... $3.04 million *

August Busch III
Anheuser-Busch Cos. ..... $1.77 million

David Farrell
May Department Stores Co. ..... $1.67 million

Edward Whitacre Jr.
Southwestern Bell Corp. ..... $2.09 million

Benefits from ex-spouses' Social Security are allowed

By Bill Hunot
Social Security Administration

Surviving ex-spouses can get benefits at age 60 — just like a widow can — if they meet two requirements. Your marriage must have lasted at least 10 years, and you must be unmarried. In other words, you can't be married to another man and get benefits on your first husband's Social Security.

Q. I have a question about my future Social Security benefits. I'm 56 years old. I was married to my ex-husband for more than 10 years. If he dies, can I get Social Security widow's benefits at age 60? What if I remarry? I was told once (by my local Social Security office) that I had to wait until my ex-husband died before I remarry if I want to get widow's benefits on his Social Security. On another occasion, I was told that all I had to do is wait until age 60 to remarry.

A. Surviving ex-spouses can get benefits at age 60 — just like a widow can — if they meet two requirements. Your marriage must have lasted at least 10 years, and you must be unmarried. In other words, you can't be married to another man and get benefits on your first husband's Social Security.

As with most Social Security rules, there is an exception to that second requirement. If you wait until after age 60 to remarry, you can still get benefits on your deceased ex-husband's Social Security.

Confusion about this issue was caused by two recent changes in Social Security policy. Before 1983, surviving ex-wives could not be married if they wanted to qualify for benefits, even if they waited until after age 60 to remarry. At that time, the age-60 exception was only for widows and widowers who were still married to the worker at the time of death.

The 1983 Social Security Amendments extended the age-60 exception to surviving divorced spouses. At first, however, Social Security applied the exception only if the remarriage occurred after the survivor turned age 60 and after the worker died.

A May 1988 court decision, Pirus vs. Bowen, ruled that this policy was incorrect. The court ruled that Social Security could not deny benefits to a surviving ex-spouse who remarried after age 60, even if that remarriage was before her ex-husband's death.

Therefore, you can remarry after age 60 without affecting your eligibility for benefits as a surviving ex-spouse. Period.

Q. My husband, who will turn age 65 this year, has decided not to retire, yet. Will his Social Security be higher because he has put off getting his benefits?

A. Yes. Delayed retirement credits (DRCs), small permanent increases in future monthly benefits, are awarded to people who continue to work and don't receive Social Security at age 65. Your husband will receive one DRC for every month after age 65 that he does not receive a Social Security benefit. For him, as for anyone born in 1927, a DRC is equal to an increase of one-third of 1 percent of his monthly benefit. That's a 4 percent raise if he delays retirement for a whole year.

Here's a tip for your husband. He may be able to work in 1992 and receive some of his Social Security benefits, anyway. The first $10,200 he earns this year won't count against his Social Security. And only $1 of benefits has to be withheld for every $3 he earns above that limit. Even if he works full time at above-average earnings he may still receive some Social Security.

Regardless of his retirement plans or current earnings, he should apply for Medicare Part A — it's free — at 65.

People who are blind can learn about Social Security programs through braille publications and audio cassette tapes. Social Security and the Library of Congress have produced a braille publication and three-hour audio cassette entitled "Social Security Programs and Benefits." Topics covered include retirement, disability and survivors benefits, Medicare and Supplemental Security Income. A special cassette player needed for the double-track audio version also is available on loan from participating libraries.

Both the braille and audio versions are available from any library affiliated with the Library of Congress. One of them is the Wollner Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, P.O. Box 387, Jefferson City, Mo., 65102. Write to the library or call (314) 751-8720 for more information.
